TERMINATION

- Beginning in 1953, Congress seeks to abolish tribes and relocate American Indians.
- Congress passes a resolution beginning a federal policy of termination in 1954, through which American Indian tribes will be disbanded and their land sold.
- The companion policy of relocation moves Indians off of reservations and into urban areas.

The Portland Expo Center is adjacent to the former site of Vanport, a planned community that flooded in 1948, killing 15 people and forcing nearly 20,000 to permanently move.

The Portland community will have a chance to reflect on its history through engaging student presentations at the “Honoring Our History: A reflection on the Vanport Flood and the Portland Assembly Center” event at 6 p.m. May 26 at the Expo Center.
